SAME ENERGY

© 2016 Bob Sima Music, It's Time, Released 5 February 2016

It's the same energy that moved the bullet, parted his skin and made his lights go dark
As the force that moved his hand to reach out, forgive and open up his heart
The same energy that pulls the teardrop from the corner of his blinded eyes
As the energy that drew the holy man, a humble witness to his side

It's the same energy that raised the barrel, pulled the trigger, released the pin
As the energy that created the memory of all the faces he'd never see again
The same energy that took his sight, made his third eye come to life, see the children cry
And the force that ignited his vision and turned his compassion into action

It's the same same
No good, no bad, just the same
Same energy
Our intention can make it change

It's the same energy that makes the whiskey, that makes the glass, that makes the ice
That moves the foot to push down the pedal, twist the metal, snuff out the life
The same energy that vibrates to make sound of the sirens and the bells
As the hum of the silence in the cathedral as a thousand hearts they fell

It's the same same
No good, no bad, just the same
Same energy
Our intention can make it change

It can be affected, directed, projected, course-corrected and perfected from within
It's not by chance, there's a choice, there's a still small voice
A single thread that runs right through
Everything you do, Everything you do, Everything you do

You can end the world with the push of a button, start a whole new universe with the wink of an eye
You can make love, make peace, make war, make a difference, raise the vibe
The same energy that makes you move mountains, burn bridges or keep you in your bed
As the force that moves your spirit to start a revolution in your head

It's the same energy that makes the flood and moves the blood and places the blame
Turns on the power, it raises the flower and raises the eyebrow, it raises the game

It's the same same same
Same same same
Same same same
Our intention can make it change
